Another Garris Joins Family Law Practice

Jacalen J. Garris was recently admitted to the practice of law for the State of Michigan.

She became the fourth member of the Garris family to go into the practice of law. She joins the law firm of Garris, Garris & Garris, which will now be known as Garris, Garris, Garris & Garris Law Offices.

The other members of the firm are her father, Jack J. Garris, and her two brothers, Steven Z. Garris and Michael J. Garris.

Jacalen Garris earned her undergraduate degree from Michigan State University, and her law degree from Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing. She is a member of Delta Theta Phi law fraternity, the Washtenaw Trial Lawyers, Michigan Trial Lawyers and the Hellenic Bar Association.

She is an active sports enthusiast, participating in marathons and triathlons.

She says she "never considered not working with her family, and that her father, Jack, was a strong influence in her decision to pursue a law career."

The firm is very family-oriented, with the entire family working there. The firm deals with all kinds of cases, but specializes in negligence and personal injury.
